

"Big Chick-CAN"

A "CAN-do" SPIRIT

"Modern Art CAN-vas"

Facility Group employees recently helped those in need by participating in two charity events with the same goal: FEEDING THE HUNGRY

COBB CAN

Facility Group employees served as advisors to Chattahoochee Technical College students in a project called Cobb Can. The students, as part of a community service project, decided to use cans of food to model their structure after a famous Marietta landmark – the Marietta Chicken. The students used more than 4,000 cans to build what they named the “Big Chick-CAN”. The structure was complete with a moving beak and turning eyes. The cans of food used in all of the structures were donated to charity.

CANSTRUCTION

Architecture employees teamed with Marketing employees to participate in a unique food charity competition called Canstruction. The program required teams build creative structures out of canned food. TFG team members included: Eric Ames, James Schoen, Randeep Singh, Katie Cash, Kara Strauss, Jennifer Karmel, Randall Brown and Vernon Kelly. The team of first-time participants designed a massive structure of 2,500 cans called “Modern Art CAN-vas”.

Thank you to all of the Company’s employees who participated in either of these events by contributing time, canned food, or money to these fun and worthwhile events.

canstruction®

James Schoen (center kneeling) with Chattahoochee Tech Students and Faculty

Left to right: Vernon Kelly, Eric Ames, James Schoen, Katie Cash, Alissa Hammontree, Jennifer Karmel, Randall Brown, Kara Strauss & Randeep Singh